

Calling all college students ...

Apply for 2011 CJN internships

Interested in finding out what goes on behind the headlines at a weekly newspaper? Want to get paid while writing feature stories and community news for the Cleveland Jewish News?

If you have completed at least your freshman year of college by June 2011, you can apply online for the 10-week Irving I. Stone summer internship. Deadline for preliminary applications is Friday, Feb. 25.

CJN interns can participate in the Cleveland Hillel Foundation Summer

Internship Program, which will net-work them with other summer interns and the broader Cleveland community while they are working in Cleveland.

To begin the process, fill out the internship application form at www.clevelandjewishnews.com (click on "Internships" at the bottom of the home page). Candidates will be asked to submit a transcript and complete a story assignment.